Third Series

OF THE

HISTORICAL SKETCH

OF

WATERTOWN,

CONNECTICUT;

WITH THE

RECORD OF ITS MORTALITY,

From 1858 to 1871.

PREPARED FOR PUBLICATION

BY THE LATE FREDERICK DAYTON.

WATERBURY, CONN.:
PRESS OF COOKE, MATTOON & ROBBINS.
1871.

NOTE.

This third series of the "Historical Sketch of, and Record of Mortality in Watertown," was arranged for publication by the late Frederick Dayton, as a continuation of the two previous series—the first, issued in 1845, by the Rev. N. S. Richardson, D. D., and the second by himself, in 1858. The development and rapid progress of that wasting disease—consumption—checked the plans of life, and suddenly terminated his earthly labors, leaving this work unfinished. The hand of affection completes it, as a loving tribute to a brother's memory, placing it before the public with the hope that it may be acceptable to all, but especially to those who will find recorded herein the names of their own loved departed ones, who, with him, are sleeping

"That quiet sleep,
Which all earth's weary ones will find at last."

M. G. D.

December, 1870.

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

As the first and second series of this work contain a full account of the settlement of Watertown, with other interesting statistical and miscellaneous information, to the year 1858, its republication in the present series is thought unnecessary. A complete record of the deaths and burials in the town since that year, is made, together with the names of those persons who were born there—but have died elsewhere—and therefore do not appear on the burial list. This addition in the second series was so generally approved that great pains have been taken to make that of this issue more complete, and it was the hope of the compiler that no name would be left out which should be added.

The great civil struggle through which our country has passed since 1858, when her sons were called to the defense of her national flag and national honor, was not unheeded by the citizens of Watertown. Patriotism and loyalty responded, and many offered themselves volunteers in the great cause. By others, bounties were paid or substitues procured, until the various State regiments contained the familiar names of numbers who were willing to do their duty on the field of battle. It was thought by the author of this work, that a summary of what was done by the town in furnishing its quota of men, would form a valuable appendix to it, and the extracts from the Town Records are inserted as he arranged them, as is also his list of deceased soldiers. In a retrospective view, this will doubtless be as interesting a historical reference as any that could be made.

In the ordinary course of events, many of the citizens of Watertown have removed their residence to other places, but they carry with them pleasant and fragrant memories of past days, and take a just pride in the growth and advancement of their native place. To come back and revisit their old homes—to greet the friends and companions of youthful and maturer years, is an ever fertile source of pleasure. To speak of changes that have come to each during days of separation, fills the mind with sadness. The cemeteries show where to find those who are missed among the living, and their ever open and increasing volumes give a faithful record of familiar names. As a beautiful rural place for the repose of the dead, Evergreen Cemetery is seldom surpassed. The Old Cemetery affords a cherished resting-place for those who desire to be laid beside kindred and friends, whose graves were made long ago.

As an agricultural town, Watertown stands first in Litchfield County. Its farmers are widely known for their thrift and enterprise, and the products of their farms are not often excelled. The Agricultural Association of the town, formed in 1867, is flourishing and increasing in interest, and offers at its annual autumnal fair, as great attractions as those which have had a longer existence.

As a healthy and attractive summer resort, also, Water town has a just repute. Its fine and well kept residences, churches and other buildings, form a prominent part in the landscape. The Warren House, which affords accommodations for a large number of guests, is an elegant structure, with fine grounds handsomely laid out.

Railroad communication with seaboard and adjacent places, which has been long desired, is now afforded. A branch road, connecting with the Naugatuck Railroad at Waterbury, was opened for travel in September last, on the first day of the autumnal fair in Watertown. The prolonged drought of the past season has been severely felt here as elsewhere, and wells and springs which have been heretofore unfailing, are now entirely dry. For many seasons such a a scarcity of water has not been known.

CHURCH RECORDS.

CONGREGATIONAL.

THE Pastors of the Congregational Church, since 1858, are as follows:

Rev. Samuel M. Freeland, acting pastor, 1862–64.
" Benjamin S. Parsons,
" Stephen Fenn,—present pastor.

Present number of families, ...	124
" " " communicants, ...	215
Connected with the Sunday School, ...	238

The chapel belonging to the Congregational Society, which stood a few rods south of their second church, has been recently removed, and a new one erected between the present church and the residence of the Misses Woodward. It is a pleasing structure, and affords excellent accommodations for religious worship. Cost of the building, about three thousand dollars.

EPISCOPAL.

The Rectors of the Episcopal Church since 1858, are as follows:

Rev. Benjamin W. Stone, D. D.
" William H. Lewis, D. D.,—present rector.

Present number of families, ...	162
" " " communicants, ...	249
Connected with the Sunday school— teachers, 19; scholars, 117, . .	136

Rev. FREDERICK HOLCOMB, D. D., twice rector of Christ Church, Watertown, is now living there, at the advanced age of eighty-four years, and is the oldest presbyter of the Episcopal Church in the Diocese of Connecticut. He was ordained deacon in New Haven, Connecticut, June 23, 1811, by the Rt. Rev. Abraham Jarvis, D.D. second Bishop of Connecticut, and priest by the same, December 20, 1812. In 1868 he lost by death his only grandchild, Frederick Holcomb Starr, and a few months since, his son-in-law, Mr. O. S. Starr. He has been called to officiate at the burial of many of his former parishioners, to whom he was warmly attached. Beloved and respected by all his townsmen, he stands among them as a connecting link between the present and the past, awakening memories both pleasant and sad.

Recent repairs upon the Episcopal church have made it more durable and attractive. Few country churches are more pleasing than this, in its proportions and style of architecture.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL.

The Ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church since May, 1858, are as follows:

Rev. Larmon W. Abbott,	1858
" A. V. R. Abbott,	1859–60
" Seymour Landon,	1861–62
" A. C. Eggleston,	1863–65

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

OF THE LATE

DOCTOR SAMUEL ELTON.

Dr. Samuel Elton, only son of Doctor John and Lucy Elton, was born in Watertown, Conn., September 6, 1780, died in that place December 8, 1858, and was buried there, in Evergreen Cemetery, on Sunday, December 12, 1858, in the seventy-ninth year of his age. The name of Elton, in connection with the practice of medicine, in what is now the town of Watertown, has been known for a period of about ninety years. Three individuals of that name, nearly connected, have filled that important and highly responsible station for these several consecutive periods, viz: Doctor James Elton, seven years; Doctor John Elton, twenty-four years; and Doctor Samuel Elton, fifty-eight years. The name of the latter has been so long a household word in the families of this community that it will live long in endearing association. Although he had outlived most of his early companions, and multitudes of the young, he had not so far outlived himself, but that he was in a degree, active and useful in his profession to the last. It was but a few moments after his return from visiting a patient, that he was attacked by his last distressing illness. He was, no doubt, one of the oldest practitioners in the State, and numbers of his brethren of the medical faculty were present at his funeral, to pay the last tribute of respect to his memory. He has descended to the grave, as full of professional honors and esteem as of years.*

SUMMARY.

The 19th Regiment, Connecticut Volunteers, was formed in pursuance of a call from President Lincoln for three hundred thousand men, immediately after the disastrous close of McClellan's Peninsular campaign in 1862. On the 3d of July, 1862, Gov. Buckingham issued a proclamation urging the people of Connecticut to raise several new regiments to aid in the completion of this number. At a county convention held in Litchfield, July 22d, resolutions were unanimously passed, declaring that an entire regiment should be raised within the county. A bounty of one hundred dollars was offered by most if not all of the towns, and the offer of a commission to any who should enlist forty men, proved a great incentive to effort. William H. Lewis, Jr. at once engaged with great earnestness in this work, as recruiting officer, and many of our townsmen enlisted under him. When the companies of the regiment were filled, he was made First Lieutenant of Company D, and afterwards Captain of Company B. Space will not allow an extended record here of the honored and worthy place which the 19th Regiment holds among those who fought our country's battles. Its full history has been compiled by Lieutenant Theodore Vail, and offers a most interesting volume of reading matter. Most of the above is an extract therefrom. Of the eight hundred and fifty who left Camp Dutton, September 15, 1862, only one hundred and eighty-three remained. Among the "dead of the regiment" are found the names of several of our own recruits. In the 20th Regiment we find the names of other of our townsmen, who fought and suffered in our civil struggle. Lieut. Nathan B. Abbott, of Company H, which suffered great loss at the battle of Chancellorville, came out unharmed. In the thick fight at Gettysburg, he was slightly wounded in the finger, and his musket struck by a rebel bullet. Being transfered to Sherman's army, he was in various battles and skirmishes in Tennessee and Georgia, and in the "great march to the sea." He was also in the severe battle at Bentonville. Being wonderfully preserved from wounds, sickness and capture, he returned in safety to his home and friends.

With the record of companies A, and H, 23d Regiment, Connecticut Volunteers, most of the citizens of Watertown are familiar. Lieut. J. A. Woodward has kindly furnished the following interesting outline of events, which are thankfully recorded. He, with all the recruits from Watertown, and the others of his company, A, were captured on the morning of the 24th of July, 1863, by the forces of Gens. Taylor, Moulton and Green, about fifteen thousand strong. Being reduced to two hundred and fifty men and officers, resistance on their part was very feeble, although some well-directed artillery shots gave the enemy a warm reception. A surrender was inevitable, and greeted with such howlings and yells as the rough Texan soldiers only could give, but with a promise to respect their private property, (knapsacks and canteens), all were started on a march to Fort Buchanan at Brashier City, La., where the rank and file were paroled, but the commissioned officers were started on a march for the interior of Texas. The incidents on the way were many—languishing under a burning July and August sun, walking from ten to twenty miles a day, and suffering intensely from hunger. Arriving at the prison, their rations were corn meal wet with cold water, and baked on the coals. Lieutenant Woodward was the only one from Watertown sent to the prison, and by various contrivances managed to get along well. Having lost his boots one day while asleep, he was six months without shoes or stockings, afterward obtaining a pair of the former by whittling out a fancy pipe and trading the same with a woman, for a pair of shoes made of untanned leather. Experiencing great inhumanity in common with the five thousand who were his comrades, he received no intelligence from his home and friends, for more than thirteen months. After an imprisonment of over a year he was released, and reached his home and friends with great joy.

List of Deceased Clergymen.

Rev. Horace Hall Reid, born in Charlestown, N. H., September 25, 1822—graduated at Yale College in 1843—ordained deacon by Bishop DeLancey, in Grace Church, New York City, on Sunday, July 2, 1848—ordained to the priesthood by Bishop Smith, in St. Peter's Church, Paris, Ky., on Whitsunday, 1849—accepted a call to the rectorship of Christ Church, Watertown, Conn., at Easter, 1850, resigning the same in December, 1856. Entering upon the rectorship of St. Stephen's Church, Millburn, N. J., January 1, 1857, he was compelled by impaired health to resign the same, November 1, 1859, and travel abroad. He died suddenly at Geneva, Switzerland, March 17, 1860, aged thirty-seven years—having, as was supposed, accidentally fallen over the baluster from the second story of the Hotel de Couronne, in that place. His remains are intered in Geneva. A mural tablet is placed in Christ Church, Watertown, Conn., as a tribute to his memory.—Selected.

Rev. Russell Wheeler, called to the rectorship of Christ Church, Watertown, Conn., in 1805—resigned the same in 1814—died in Morris, N. Y., February 18, 1861, aged 78.

Rev. Horace Hooker, pastor of the Congregational Church in Watertown, Conn., from 1822 to 1824, died in Hartford, Conn., December 17, 1864, aged 71.

Rev. Chauncey Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational Church in Watertown, Conn., from 1849 to 1856, died in New Haven, Conn., March 27, 1868, aged 51.

Rev. T. A. Lovejoy, minister of the Methodist Church in Watertown, Conn., 1866 and 1867, died in that place, June 7, 1867, aged 47. Buried in Stratford, Conn.

Obituary.

Mrs. Sarah (Bronson), widow of Johnson F. Welton, died in Burton, Ohio, March 23, 1870, aged 102 years, 4 months and 8 days, and was buried in that place. She was born in Waterbury, Conn., December 15, 1767, and married to Mr. Welton in 1794, at the age of 27. She became the mother of ten children, eight of whom survive her; the eldest being at this present, seventy-five years old, and the youngest fifty-five. Her grandchildren number forty; her great-grandchildren fifty-six, and the fifth generation three; making in all, living and dead, one hundred and nine lineal descendants. Her married life till 1834, was passed in Watertown, Conn., a period of forty years, thus identifying her with the people and interests of that place. In 1834, she removed with her husband and family to Burton, Ohio, where Mr. Welton died in 1844—she surviving him over twenty-five years. Her life ante-dated the Declaration of Independence, nine years—at the surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown, in 1781, she was fourteen—and when the present Constitution of the United States was ratified, and Washington elected first President, she was twenty-two. Uniting with the Episcopal Church, not long after her marriage, she continued in that communion until her death, and having filled her long day of earthly toil and patient waiting, she passed away to inherit the gracious recompense of reward.—Extract from Obituary.

Æ 45.

We shall Know Them in the Morning.

We shall know them in the morning, when Jesus calls his own,
In the morn of the resurrection, and heavenly joys are won.
We shall know them in the morning, when all the saints arise,
On the right hand, where they gather, who are fitted for the skies.

We shall meet them in the morning of Heaven's eternal light,
Where the saints of every nation are robed in changeless white,
With Jesus and His angels, the glad host of the skies.
We shall meet them in the morning, when all the saints arise.

We shall see them in the morning where partings never come,
Where those we've loved in Jesus, forever are at home.
We'll range the plains together, and joy in bliss untold,
We shall join them in the morning, where the streets are paved with gold.

We shall greet them in the morning, where sainted ones all meet,
Within the walls of Jasper, we'll bow at Jesus' feet.
Where every singing seraph, his harp of glory tries,
We shall greet them in the morning, when all the saints arise.

We shall know them in the morning, with the waking sainted dead,
Cheered by the gladsome presence of Christ, our Living Head.
Arrayed in robes of brightness, exultant for the prize,
We shall know them in the morning, when all the saints arise.
